

We support wild pollinators

Native wild pollinators play critical life-support roles on this planet. We choose to support them in this space, where mostly native plants offer conditions that are as “natural” as possible.

